SUMMARY

I am a goal-oriented and analytical person that has always been interested in technology. During my studies at the university I have learned a lot about program development, working in teams and solving new problems without previous knowledge.

I've always liked to challenge myself and in a group I would describe myself as organized and reliable.

A big part of my life is to work out. By being an active person and working out a few times a week it lets me clear my mind and stay focused when I need to.
